Minerals. The mineral production in 1927 had a value of $11,652,000. State ranked thirty-eighth in value of minerals. Principal products were stone, clay products, sand, gravel, copper.

General. The state exports coastwise and to foreign ports large amounts of lumber, cotton, tobacco, flour and fish. Water-power is abundant. The rivers have a fall estimated at ten feet per mile, indicating 2,000,000 potential horse-power; 500,000 horse-power is in use. There are abundant transportation facilities by both water and railroads and the latter are constantly expanding.

NORTH DAKOTA

Population 641,192 (State Census, 1925)

State Capital, BISMARCK

North Dakota is bounded north by Manitoba and Saskatchewan, south by South Dakota, east by Minnesota and west by Montana. Length, east to west, about 355 miles; width, about 200 miles. Land area, 70,183 square miles. The Missouri River furnishes navigation for boats of three to six hundred tons burden. The Red River of the North, also navigable, drains the great wheat valley on its eastern border. That portion of the state east of the Missouri River is mostly rolling prairie; the soil on the Missouri slope being a black, sandy loam, with clay subsoil; while in the Red River valley it is a vegetable deposit of unsurpassed richness. West of the Missouri River the land is more broken, with stretches of excellent farming and grazing lands along the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad. In the north is a group of hills of moderate elevation known as the Turtle Mountains. In the southwest is a district of eroded clay hills, called the "Bad Lands," generally a good grazing region. Although great extremes of temperature are recorded, 106° in July and —44° in January, the climate is healthful and the soil productive. The rainfall is not great, but sufficient in ordinary years. The Missouri River and all small streams and lakes are lined with timber.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 639,954; of this number 131,503 are foreign-born, 5,298 from the British Isles, Scandinavians 53,285, Russians 29,617, Germans 11,960. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Indians 6,254. Urban residents 88,239, rural 558,633. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 2.1; of the foreign-born white 5.6.

Agriculture. North Dakota ranked twentieth in 1927 in total value of agricultural products, value $352,010,000; value of crops, $274,000,000; value of live stock products, $78,000,000. The total area of tillable land is about 40,000,000 acres. There were, in 1920, 77,690 farms. They averaged in size 466.1 acres and in area of improved land 316.2 acres. Owners operated 56,917; managers, 855; tenants, 19,918. Native born farmers numbered 40,899; foreign-born farmers, 36,248, 15,514 being Scandinavians. Creameries are numerous and the dairy interests are growing. The northern and central parts are especially adapted to the growing of wheat and other cereals, potatoes, vegetables and the earlier varieties of corn. The Red River valley is celebrated for its wheat production. While grain is still the chief crop other crops are claiming much attention and diversified farming is becoming more common.

Chief Crops—1928	Production	State's Rank	Value	Acreage	Average Acre Yield
Barley	55,564,000 bu.	2	$23,893,000	2,179,000	25.5 bu.

OHIO

Population 6,826,000 (U. S. Census Bureau Estimate, 1928)

State Capital, COLUMBUS

Ohio is bounded north by Michigan and Lake Erie, east by Pennsylvania and West Virginia, south by West Virginia and Kentucky and west by Indiana; greatest length from east to west 225 miles; greatest breadth 200 miles; land area, 40,740 square miles, of which less than 700 square miles is waste land. The general character of the surface is that of a plateau of about 800 to 1,000 feet above sea level. The most prominent feature is the great divide which separates the drainage of Lake Erie from that of the Ohio River. This passes diagonally across the state from Trumbull county in the northeast to Mercer and Darke counties in the west. Its average height is about 600 feet above the lake; and from it the surface slopes gradually northward toward the lake and southward toward the river. The rivers and streams have excavated deep valleys, which give to the surface its distinctive undulating or rolling character.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 5,571,893; of this number 678,697 are foreign-born, 92,354 from the British Isles, Germans 111,893, Hungarians 73,181, Italians 60,658, Scandinavians 11,106. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Negroes 186,187. Urban residents 3,677,136, rural 2,082,258. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 2.8; of the foreign-born white 12.6; of the negroes 8.1.

Agriculture. Ohio ranked ninth in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $674,000,000; value of crops, $312,000,000; value of live stock products, $362,000,000. The soil is universally fertile and Ohio holds a leading position in every branch of agriculture. The uplands are well suited to wheat, the southern slope of the watershed to grain, the northern slope and the northeast section or Western Reserve to grazing and dairying. In 1920 the farms numbered 256,695. They averaged in size 91.6 acres, in area of improved land 72.2 acres. Owners operated 69.3 per cent, managers, 1.2 per cent; tenants, 29.5 per cent. The farmers were 241,075 native white, 14,004 foreign-born white, nearly half of them from Germany and Austria; 1,616 negroes. OREGON

Population 902,000 (U. S. Census Bureau Estimate, 1928)

State Capital, SALEM

Oregon is bounded north by Washington, east by Idaho, south by Nevada and California and west by the Pacific Ocean; average length from east to west, about 300 miles; average breadth, about 260 miles; land area, 95,607 square miles. It is divided unequally by the Cascade Mountains. East of this range the surface is generally undulating table land, with high cone-like hills and deep canyons. Between the Cascade and Coast ranges is the Willamette valley, 60 miles wide by 150 miles long and exceedingly fertile; from the Coast range westward the surface is mountainous, hilly and broken. The principal industries of this region are dairying and fruit growing, but it is well adapted to wool growing, stock raising and the growth of winter wheat, barley, oats and hay. The eastern portion does better as a stock raising region, but good wheat is also grown there, especially in the northern counties. Several irrigation projects have been started to develop the arid portions of this region as the soil needs only water to make it produce excellent crops. The climate is salubrious. In the extreme west, between the coast range and the ocean, the annual rainfall is very heavy, being about 70 to 80 inches; in the central and eastern portions it ranges from normal to scanty.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 769,146; of this number 102,151 are foreign-born, 16,357 from the British Isles, Scandinavians 21,089, Germans 13,740, Canadians 13,121. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Indians 4,590, negroes 2,144. Urban residents 391,019, rural 392,370. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 1.5; of the foreign-born white 5.1; of the negroes 4.7.

Agriculture. Oregon ranked thirtieth in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $198,000,000; value of crops, $114,000,000; value of live stock products, $84,000,000. In the Willamette valley wheat, corn, hops, tobacco, wool, flax, fruit, linseed, dairy products and potatoes are produced in quantities. The Rogue River valley, on account of its mild climate, is well adapted for growing fruits, especially grapes, which are shipped to eastern markets. The growing and drying of prunes form an important industry. Other important crops are strawberries, peaches, pears, cherries, plums and especially apples. There were 50,206 farms in 1920, having an average size of 269.7 acres and an average improved area of 97.9 acres. 81.2 per cent of the farms are worked by owners or managers, 18.8 per cent or 9,427 farms are operated by tenants. Native white farmers number 40,484, foreign-born white, 9,149; negroes, 15; Indians, 300; Japanese, 224; Chinese, 34. In the eastern and central portions there are 9,154 farms irrigated, aggregating 986,162 acres. The irrigation enterprises in operation are capable of irrigating 1,344,046 acres.

From. U. S. Agr. Dept. Report, Dec., 1928.

On January 1, 1929, there were on the farms: 2,501,000 sheep, value $28,733,000. The wool clip in 1928 weighed 20,332,000 pounds; mohair, 525,000 pounds. The state ranks seventh in sheep, sixth in the production of wool and fourth in the production of mohair.

Forests. In 1920 the wooded area was estimated to cover 23,275,000 acres. The principal species of timber cut during 1926 was Douglas fir. The state ranked first in the production of yellow pine. In 1927 there were 369 active mills cutting over 50,000 feet, lumber cut 3,992,852 (m.ft.b.m.). The state ranked second in lumber sawed and in the production of shingles and lath. The forests of Oregon contain more old growth virgin timber than is to be found in any other state. The principal species are Douglas fir, Pondosa pine, hemlock and spruce. About 50 per cent of this timber is in the National Forests.

Industries. In 1925, there were 1,908 manufacturing establishments doing an annual business of $5,000 or over, an increase of six over 1923, employing 59,579 wage earners. Annual value of products, $352,948,841. Some leading industries according to value of products are: lumber and timber products; flour and grain mill products; butter, cheese, condensed and evaporated milk; slaughtering and meat packing; canning and preserving, fish, crabs, shrimps, oysters, clams, fruit and vegetables; paper and wood pulp; furniture; woolen goods, and many others.

General. Navigable water lies on three sides of the state, the Snake River on the east, the Columbia River on the north and the Pacific Ocean on the west and in addition to the mouth of the Columbia, which is one of the finest harbors in the world, there are several inlets along the coast. Water-power has been developed to the extent of 200,000 horse-power and there are many millions more awaiting development.

PENNSYLVANIA

Population 9,854,000 (U. S. Census Bureau Estimate, 1928)

State Capital, HARRISBURG

Pennsylvania is bounded north by New York and Lake Erie, east by New York and New Jersey, south by Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia and west by West Virginia and Ohio. Its greatest length from east to west is about 302 miles; its greatest breadth about 175 miles; mean length, 280 miles; mean breadth, 158 miles; land area, 44,832 square miles. The surface is varied, chiefly level or slightly undulating in the southwest, hilly and mountainous in the interior and generally rolling or broken in the west. A series of parallel ridges, members of the Appalachian system, each with a distinct name, traverse the state from northeast to southwest. The most eastern of these is the South Mountain, an extension of the Blue Ridge and the western and highest the Alleghany, from which the surface slopes generally toward Ohio.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 8,432,726; of this number 1,387,850 are foreign-born, 261,954 from the British Isles, Poles 177,770, Russians 161,124, Italians 222,764, Germans, 120,194, Austrians 122,755. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Negroes 284,568. Urban residents 5,607,815, rural 3,112,202. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 4.6; of the foreign-born white 18.9; of the negroes 6.1.

Agriculture. Pennsylvania ranked twelfth in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $575,000,000; value of crops, $289,000,000; value of live stock products, $286,000,000. The soil of the valleys and plains is generally fertile and some of it exceedingly so. There is a wide diversification of agriculture in the state. More than 61 counties produced over $1,000,000 of field and fruit crops in 1925, all but 13 counties had live stock on the farms valued at more than $1,000,000 and 46 counties produced more than $1,000,000 worth of milk, eggs, wool and honey. The principal agricultural counties are Lancaster, York, Chester and Berks. The crops grown in 1925 reached a total valuation of $300,226,000, an increase of 11 per cent over 1924. The state ranked 14 among the states in the value of the 1925 crops. The highest rank ever attained by Pennsylvania was 17 in 1921. The combined acre yields of the principal crops in 1925 were nearly eight per cent higher than the average of the acre yields in the previous years. Lancaster and York counties are the principal tobacco raising counties and Lancaster county is said to produce more tobacco than any other county in the United States. There has been an increase of almost 10 per cent in the number of hives of bees on Pennsylvania farms in the past seven years. The honey production in 1925 was 2,610,179 pounds, value $612,605.28. Farms in the state, in 1920, numbered 202,250, averaging in size 87.3 acres, 58.6 acres improved. There has been a decrease of 1,807 farms since 1920 and the average size has shrunk to 81.3 acres. The percentage of farms operated by their owners has increased to 81.7 in 1925. 21.9 per cent of the farms were operated by tenants. Native farmers numbered 187,277, foreign-born 14,522.

From. U. S. Agr. Dept. Report, Dec., 1928.

Pennsylvania ranks thirteenth in the average value of live stock, value $180,000,000. On January 1, 1929, there were 349,000 horses on the farms, value $40,374,000; 855,000 milk cows, value $94,905,000. State ranks tenth in horses and fifth in dairy cows.

Industries. In 1925, there were 17,298 manufacturing establishments doing an annual business of $5,000 or over, a decrease of 1,696 since 1923, employing 999,460 wage earners. Annual value of products, $6,901,762,098. Some leading industries according to value of products are: iron and steel; silk; foundry and machine shop products; knit goods; electrical machinery, apparatus and supplies; petroleum refining; slaughtering and meat packing; tobacco, cigars and cigarettes; coke; men's clothing; structural and ornamental ironwork; motor vehicles; leather, tanned, curried and finished; glass; paper and wood pulp.

Minerals. The 1927 mineral production had a value of $937,123,000. State ranked first in value of minerals. Principal products were coal, cement, clay products, natural gas.

General. Philadelphia is one of the principal seats of foreign and coastwise trade. The leading exports are grain, provisions, petroleum, tobacco, oil cake, lumber, tallow, hides, leather, shoes, cotton goods, machinery and coal. Erie and Pittsburgh are also great commercial centres. Philadelphia and Chester are the chief ship-building stations. Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Reading and Scranton are the chief seats of the iron manufactures. Philadelphia is one of the great manufacturing cities of the world and has an enormous production of iron goods, woolen and other textile fabrics as well as other articles.

PHILADELPHIA† (L10), pop. 2,064,200, Gov't Est. 1928, foreign born 21.8%, English reading 85%; Philadelphia Co. (SE), pop. 2,064,200, Gov't Est. 1928. Located on the West bank of the Delaware River at the mouth of Schuylkill River. About 60 m from the ocean and 87 m SW of New York. B&O; Read; P RRs. Tel, express, bank. Third largest city in the United States, ninth in the world. Considered the third richest city and ranks third in the total value of its manufactured products. It is an important wholesale distributing center and is the second most important port. A Belt Line RR. connecting with the 267 wharves, 41 railroad piers and 8 municipal piers makes it possible to transfer freight from any railroad point in the country direct to any steamship wharf in the city and vice versa. There were, in 1926, over 6,000 manufacturing establishments producing more than 200 different products. This indicates an unusual diversity of industries; the more important of which are the sugar refineries; foundries and machine shops; leather works; textile mills; printing and publishing houses; clothing, carpet and rug, electrical machinery, tobacco and cigar, food products and many other factories. About 25% of the Building and Loan Associations in the country are located in Philadelphia and its financial institutions play an important part in the industrial development of the city. Philadelphia is noted for its places of historical interest, its municipal park which is one of the largest municipal parks in the country, its educational institutions of high standing, its residential suburbs and its beautiful homes. One of the longest suspension bridges in the world, with a span of 1,750 feet over the Delaware River, connects Philadelphia with Camden, New Jersey, and the seashore resorts.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

Population 10,314,310 (1918 census). Local estimate (1925) 11,868,000

Capital, MANILA

The Philippine Islands are an important group of islands in the Malay Archipelago, lying mainly between latitude 32° and 19° 38′ north and longitude 117° and 126° east. They range in area from 50,000 square miles to less than one square mile, ninety per cent being in the latter class. The total area is about 114,400 square miles, approximately the size of New York and New England. The principal islands, their areas and populations are: Luzon, 40,814 square miles, 4,000,000; Mindanao, 36,906 square miles, 500,000; Samar, 5,124 square miles, 225,000; Panay, 4,448 square miles, 750,000; Mindoro, 3,794 square miles, 30,000; Leyte, 2,799 square miles, 360,000; Negros, 4,903 square miles, 475,000; Palawan, 4,500 square miles; Cebu, 1,695 square miles, 600,000; Bohol, 1,534 square miles, 250,000; Masbate, 1,255 square miles. There are many diverse races among the natives speaking eighty-seven different dialects. According to the 1918 census all but about 66,000 were Filipinos. There were 5,776 Americans, 43,802 Chinese, 7,806 Japanese, 3,945 Spanish, 1,148 Britons, 286 Germans, 182 French and 125 Swiss. Fully 90 per cent of the people are to some extent civilized. There were in 1926, 7,789 public schools, 1,000,000 pupils and in 1925, 32,591 native and 310 American teachers. There are 676 private schools. Provision is made for higher education in high schools, normal schools, manual training and agricultural schools. The University of the Philippines has about 6,000 students. Christianized people number 9,495,272; Non-Christians, 855,368. In 1926 there were 936 post offices in the islands; 8,346 miles of telegraph and cable lines, 792 miles of railroad in operation and 6,622 miles of public road. Rainfall is abundant over the entire archipelago, varying from 60 inches in the driest district to 157 in the wettest. There are many fine harbors, that of Manila being considered the best in the eastern Pacific. The larger islands are mountainous with altitudes rising to nearly 30,000 feet and have numerous large rivers.

Agriculture. Agriculture is the chief industry. In 1925, 14,342 square miles were under cultivation. More than half of this area is on the island of Luzon and one-third on the Visayan Islands. More land is being brought under tillage each year. The chief product is abaca, which is known throughout the world as Manila hemp. The 1925 value of important crops was: Hemp, $32,148,120; rice, $96,090,000; sugar, $56,364,950; corn and its products, $15,383,625; tobacco $5,945,795. Other principal products are coconuts, fruits, maguey spices, cacao, coffee, cotton, rattan, timber and other forest products, including dye-woods. There are 1,165,964 acres in the coconut plantations, with an annual production of about one and one-half billion nuts. More than half of these are used locally for food and in the manufacture of various native beverages. The rest are made into copra, coconut oil and meal and dessicated coconut meat. Cacao is grown in the southern islands, chiefly in Mindanao. Rubber culture has been carried on for some time on a small scale. About 1,500,000 acres are suitable for its production, but the land laws limiting the holdings of any single company, prevent any large production. Practically all of the forest land is in forest reserves under the control of the Bureau of Forestry of the Philippines. The reserves have a total area of 59,500 square miles, less than one per cent of the forest lands are privately controlled. There are 40,000 square miles of virgin forest.

Industrial and Commercial. The principal manufacturing industries are those connected with the manufacture of coconut products and hemp, cigars and tobacco. The production of crude sugar in 1925 was 779,510 tons, besides 1,278,836 gallons of molasses and 1,141,534 gallons of basi, a beverage in local use. Foundries and machine shops are growing in number and size. The fisheries are of value. Fish canneries have an annual output of 18,000,000 pounds. Salt is manufactured in considerable quantities, by the evaporation of sea-water and from saline springs. By the adoption of modern methods and machinery the salt industry may be made one of great importance. The 1926 imports from the United States were valued at $69,957,871 and from other countries $47,679,241. The exports to the United States were valued at $102,831,205; to foreign countries $38,213,225. Great Britain, Japan, China and Spain have most of the foreign trade. Coconut products furnished over $45,000,000 of the exports. Sugar, hemp and tobacco followed in order. The other chief exports are cordage, hard woods, rattan, embroidered garments, pearl buttons, resin and gums, shells and tropical fruits.

Minerals. Gold was mined to the value of $1,843,200 in 1925. Silver, copper, iron, zinc, asbestos, manganese, lead, coal (lignite, bituminous and a little anthracite), sulphur, asphalt, natural gas and petroleum are also found.

PORTO RICO

Population 1,350,000 (Local estimate)

Capital, SAN JUAN

Porto Rico is situated within the tropics, seventy-five miles east of the island of Haiti and 1,400 miles SSE of New York. The territory includes the large island of Porto Rico and a number of smaller ones, among which are Vieques Island, six miles wide and twenty miles long and Culebra Island, three miles wide and eight miles long, both off the eastern end of Porto Rico; Mona Island, four miles wide and six miles long, situated about fifty miles west of Porto Rico. The island of Porto Rico is 95 miles long from east to west and 35 miles wide. Its area is 3,435 square miles, approximately the size of Delaware and Rhode Island together. It is traversed from east to west by a mountain range, with an altitude from 1,500 to 3,750 feet, cultivatable to the summits. The climate is generally mild and healthful. The northeast trade winds produce an equable temperature, with an annual mean of 76 degrees F. Rainfall averages 77.30 inches. There are good harbors at San Juan, on the north coast, and Ponce, on the south coast.

Population, 1920 census. White people number 948,700; of which 7,481 are foreign born; 4,975 being Spanish. Total foreign born, black and white, 8,167. Of pure or mixed negro blood, 351,062. Urban residents, 283,934 rural 1,015,875. There are nearly 400 persons to the square mile, a density of population exceeded by only Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New Jersey among the states. Illiterates over 10 years of age, 55 per cent of the population. Under Spanish rule more than 80 per cent were illiterate. Public schools number 2,205 with 4,003 teachers and more than 250,000 pupils.

Agriculture. The soil is remarkably fertile and the chief industry is agriculture. In the southern parts of the island irrigation is needed and an extensive system has been constructed by the government which supplies water to about 42,000 acres. The principal product is sugar, which is grown on 240,000 acres, employing 80,000 workers. Other crops are coffee, tobacco, rice, corn, beans, peas, sweet potatoes, yams, oranges, pineapples, bananas and other tropical fruits and some cotton. Beef cattle are raised in large numbers, and the dairy industry is growing.

Minerals. The mineral deposits are not large, but have been worked to some extent. Gold silver, copper, lead, iron and lignite are found, and there are salt works in several localities. Marble, limestone and other building stones exist in large quantities.

Industrial. The chief industry is the manufacture of sugar which employs nearly half of the total number of persons engaged in manufacturing establishments. The 1926 production was 609,832 tons, almost all going to the United States. There are over 500 varieties of trees growing on the island and lumbering is an important industry.

Commerce. The trade of Porto Rico is chiefly with the United States and Great Britain. Exports to the United States for the year ending June, 1926, were valued at $88,106,570 and the imports from the United States at $83,046,553. The exports to foreign countries in 1926 were $10,982,684; the imports from foreign countries $12,054,034. Sugar alone accounted for $48,223,263 of the exports; cigars $7,196,493 and fruits $6,009,090. Over twenty-six million pounds of coffee and some lumber were also exported. The public highways and transportation facilities in general have been extended and improved. There are about 340 miles of railroads.

RHODE ISLAND

Population 716,000 (U. S. Census Bureau Estimate, 1928)

State Capital, PROVIDENCE

Rhode Island is bounded on the north and east by Massachusetts, south by the Atlantic Ocean and west by Connecticut. Its extreme length from north to south is 47½ miles; extreme breadth, 40 miles; average breadth, 35 miles; land area, 1,067 square miles. The surface is for the most part rough, hilly and stony. There are no mountains and few hills of any altitude. Nearly one-fourth is woodland.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 593,980; of this number 173,499 are foreign-born, 53,981 from the British Isles, Italians 32,241, French Canadians 28,887. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Negroes 10,036. Urban residents 589,180, rural 15,217. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 6.5; of the foreign-born white 16.5; of the negroes 10.2.

Agriculture. Rhode Island ranked forty-eighth in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $13,000,000; value of crops, $5,000,000; value of live stock products, $8,000,000. Rhode Island is not an agricultural state. The production of corn and oats is but little more than is used at home; that of other cereals small; dairy and market-garden produce and live stock moderate. Dairying is increasing in importance because of the demand for milk and milk products. The area devoted to the production of food crops declined in ten years from 350,000 acres to less than 200,000. There were 4,083 farms in the state in 1920, a decrease of 22.8 per cent in ten years. They averaged in size 81.2 acres, 32.5 acres improved. 15.5 per cent of the farms were worked by tenants, 84.5 per cent owners or managers. About 80 per cent of the acreage and nearly half of the value is for hay and forage crops.

Chief Crops—1928	Production	State's Rank	Value	Acreage	Average Acre Yield
Corn	390,000 bu.		$526,000	10,000	39.0 bu.
Hay (Tame)	67,000 tons		1,474,000	43,000	1.56 tons
Oats	56,000 bu.		39,000	2,000	28.0 bu.
Potatoes	244,000 bu.		220,000	2,000	122 bu.
Chief Fruits:
Apples	27,000 bu.		62,000
Grapes	190 tons
Peaches	27,000 bu.		62,000
Pears	7,000 bu.		13,000
Total estimated value of 22 leading crops		48	$2,587,000

From U. S. Agr. Dept. Report, Dec., 1928.

Fisheries. The fish caught during 1924 weighed 20,535,327 pounds, value $1,818,858. A decrease over 1919 of 27,715,556 pounds and $1,477,720. The most valuable catches were lobsters, oysters, clams, mackerel, flounder.

Industries. In 1925, there were 1,595 manufacturing establishments doing an annual business of $5,000 or over, a decrease of 86 since 1923, employing 120,346 wage earners. Annual value of products, $621,919,637. Some leading industries according to value of products are: worsted and cotton goods; jewelry; dyeing and finishing textiles; silk; woolens; textile machinery and parts; electrical machinery, apparatus and supplies; knit goods; foundry and machine shop products; rubber goods; gas, manufactured; slaughtering and meat packing; lumber and timber products. Rhode Island is the chief center of the jewelry manufacturing industry of the United States.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Population 1,864,000 (U. S. Census Bureau Estimate, 1928)

State Capital, COLUMBIA

South Carolina is bounded north and northeast by North Carolina, southeast by the Atlantic Ocean, west and southwest by Georgia. Its greatest length from east to west is about 275 miles, and its greatest breadth about 210 miles; land area, 30,495 square miles. The climate along the coast might be termed sub-tropical. Through the rest of the state it is mild and temperate. The rainfall varies from 40 to 55 inches. The surface presents nearly the same features as that of North Carolina. The coast for 100 miles inland is low and level, with sandy soil, numerous swamps and extensive pine forests; then follows a tract of low sand hills, the soil of which is moderately productive. The land rises abruptly on the western edge of this belt and continues to rise until it terminates in the Blue Ridge, the highest peak of which, Table Mountain, is 4,000 feet above the sea. The swamps embrace over 1,000,000 acres and the pine lands 6,000,000. The climate in the western sections is comparatively cool, the central part medium and the coast sub-tropical.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 818,538; of this number 6,401 are foreign-born, 1,135 from the British Isles, Russians 1,187, Germans 1,079. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Negroes 864,719. Urban residents 293,987, rural 1,389,737. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 18.1; of the foreign-born white 6.2; of the negroes 29.3.

Agriculture. South Carolina ranked twenty-ninth in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $222,000,000; value of crops, $179,000,000; value of live stock products, $43,000,000. The sea islands are mainly devoted to sea island cotton, the finest grade produced in this country, and rice; the tidal swamps to rice; inland swamps, when drained, to rice, cotton, corn and peas; the salt marshes to long staple cotton; the oak and pine and oak and hickory lands to corn and cotton; and the pine barrens to fruits and vegetables. Rice, cotton and corn thrive best in the central and southern counties. The northwestern region produces corn, wheat, oats, tobacco and many fruits. The state had 192,693 farms in 1920, averaging in size 64.5 acres and in area of improved land 32.1 acres. There were 83,683 white and 109,010 colored farmers. 38,163 of the white and 86,068 of the negro farmers were tenants, 64.5 per cent of the state's farms were operated by tenants. Cotton is still the principal money crop but the production of other crops, such as grain, tobacco, fruits and truck crops is increasing. Figs and pomegranates grow in the lower counties, and peaches and grapes thrive over the state generally; strawberries are abundant. Tea is being grown at Pinehurst and while the total production is still small, crops have been grown producing 600 pounds of dried tea of good quality to the acre. The demand for native tea is growing.

From. U. S. Agr. Dept. Report, Dec., 1928.

Industries. In 1925, there were 1,134 manufacturing establishments, doing an annual business of $5,000 or over, a decrease of 46 since 1923, employing 100,144 wage earners. Annual value of products, $373,359,810. Some leading industries according to value of products are: cotton goods; lumber and timber products; cottonseed-oil, cake and meal; fertilizers; dyeing and finishing; beverages; clay, flour and grain mill products.

General. There are several good harbors, the most important one is Charleston, which is a prominent coastwise and foreign shipping point. Exports are chiefly rice, cotton, lumber, phosphate, naval stores, cottonseed and its oil, oil cake, fish and spring vegetables.

SOUTH DAKOTA

State Capital, PIERRE

South Dakota is bounded north by North Dakota, east by Minnesota and Iowa, south by Nebraska and west by Montana and Wyoming. Length, east to west, nearly 360 miles; width, about 240 miles. Land area, about 76,868 square miles. The Missouri River has depth enough for boats up to six hundred tons burden. That portion of the state east of the Missouri River is mostly rolling prairie; the soil on the Mississippi slope being a black, sandy loam, with clay subsoil. West of the river the land is more broken, with mining and grazing land in the southwestern or Black Hills region, which is a mountain district of nearly 5,000 square miles in extent, exceedingly rich in valuable minerals and in great part well adapted to stock raising. It is largely forested and with the aid of irrigation much of it might be adapted to agriculture.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 619,147; of this number 82,391 are foreign-born, 6,076 from the British Isles, Scandinavians 31,369, Germans 15,674, Russians 11,193. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Indians 16,384. Urban residents 101,872, rural 534,675. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 1.7; of the foreign-born white 4.7.

Agriculture. South Dakota ranked nineteenth in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $357,000,000; value of crops, $246,000,000; value of live stock products, $111,000,000. In the northwestern part of the state irrigation has brought into cultivation many thousands of acres previously untilled. The eastern portion of the state is especially adapted to the growing of wheat and other cereals, potatoes, vegetables and flax. The state's farms in 1920 numbered 74,637. They averaged 464.1 acres in size, 243.8 acres improved. 34.9 per cent of the farms are worked by tenants. Tenants numbered 6,801 more than in 1910, an increase of 35.4 per cent, the owners operating their own farms were 10,169 fewer than in 1910, a decrease of 17.5 per cent. The total number of farms decreased 3,007, although the acreage increased 33.1 per cent and the average acreage per farm 38.5 per cent. 52,700 farms were operated by native Americans, 20,325 by foreign-born white farmers, more than a third being Scandinavians, 1,563 by Indians, 47 by negroes and 2 by Orientals.

TENNESSEE

Population 2,502,000 (U. S. Census Bureau Estimate, 1928)

State Capital, NASHVILLE

Tennessee is bounded north by Kentucky and Virginia; southeast by North Carolina, south by Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi; west by Arkansas and Missouri; greatest length from east to west 432 miles, breadth 109 miles; land area, 41,687 square miles. The climate is generally healthful and equable, the winters are short and the rainfall is sufficient for all needs, averaging about 52 inches. The state is popularly divided into East, Middle and West Tennessee. East Tennessee comprises the eastern mountain border, the beautiful East Tennessee Valley and about half of the Cumberland Mountain plateau. Middle Tennessee reaches from about the center of the plateau to the Tennessee River and is a region of fertile terraces, including the vast elliptical basin of nearly 5,000 square miles, known as the Garden of Kentucky. West Tennessee extends from the Tennessee River to the Mississippi and is somewhat broken in the east, succeeded by a rolling plain descending to the latter river. The Mississippi bottom is a low, flat, alluvial plain, covered with forests, lakes and swamps.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 1,885,993; of this number 15,478 are foreign-born, 3,588 from the British Isles. Russians 2,262, Germans 2,159, Italians 2,079. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Negroes 451,758. Urban residents 611,226, rural 1,726,659. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 10.3; of the foreign-born white 8.3; of the negroes 22.4.

Agriculture. Tennessee ranked seventeenth in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $378,000,000; value of crops, $201,000,000; value of live stock products, $177,000,000. West Tennessee is extremely fertile, and produces good crops of corn and cotton. Middle Tennessee yields excellent grain, tobacco and much cotton, especially towards the south. East Tennessee valley lands produce corn, cotton, apples, peaches and winter wheat. In 1920 there were 252,774 farms, with an average size of 77.2 acres, 44.3 acres improved. 41.1 per cent were worked by tenants, 75,596 of the tenant farmers were white and 28,280 were negro. Owners working their own farms numbered 138,242 white and 9,800 negroes, 807 farms were operated by managers.

Population 5,487,000 (U. S. Census Bureau Estimate, 1928)

State Capital, AUSTIN

Texas is bounded north by New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arkansas, east by Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, southeast by the Gulf of Mexico, southwest by Mexico and west by New Mexico; greatest length, about 740 miles; greatest breadth, 825 miles; land area, 262,398 square miles. From the Sabine River to the Trinity River is the great timber region, generally level and sandy in the south, rolling and fertile in the north. From the Trinity to the Colorado is prairie, timbered along streams, with extensive forests of live oak, extending through central and western Texas to the Red River, called the "Cross Timbers." The mean elevation is about 850 feet. Western Texas embraces the counties between the Colorado and Rio Grande; four-fifths of it is prairie; timber is generally confined to banks of streams. Between the Colorado and the Brazos Rivers are the Comanche and Leon River Mountain ranges. In the north and northwest are the Church and Double Mountains and the surface is generally broken until the Llano Estacado, or Staked Plain, is reached. It composes a great portion of the "Panhandle" and the natural vegetation consists only of grass. There is some farming here, but the chief industry of this district and the whole northwestern part of the state is stock raising. Between the Pecos and Rio Grande are several ranges, sometimes attaining an elevation of 5,000 feet.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 3,918,165; of this number 360,519 are foreign-born, 14,143 from the British Isles, Mexicans 251,827, Germans 31,062. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Negroes 741,694. Urban residents 1,512,689, rural 3,150,539. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 8.3; of the foreign-born white 33.8; of the negroes 17.8.

Agriculture. Texas ranked second in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $117,000,000; value of crops, $772,000,000; value of live stock products, $345,000,000. The chief crops of Texas are cotton, corn and wheat, but almost every variety of plant which can be grown in the temperate or sub-tropical regions and many which are considered tropical plants, can be grown successfully in some part of this great state. About a fifth of the world's cotton crop is produced in Texas. Galveston, through which port the bulk of Texas cotton is shipped, handles more than any other port, shipping nearly 4,000,000 bales each year. Sugar cane is grown chiefly on the Brazos and other rivers, near their mouths and produces quantities of sirup each year. Rice is grown in the south and southeast. There were 436,033 farms in the state in 1920 averaging 261.5 acres with 71.6 acres improved. 201,210 of the farms (46.1 per cent) were operated by their owners, 2,514 (.57 per cent) by managers and 232,309 (53.3 per cent) by tenants. The white farmers numbered 357,249; 49.6 per cent were tenants. Colored farmers numbered 78,784; 70 per cent were tenants. The census included among the colored farmers, besides negroes, 153 Indians, 29 Japanese and 5 Chinese. In the white farmers are included 29,774 of foreign birth, 10,877 being Mexicans and 10,919 Germans and Austrians. Texas now produces immense quantities of orchard and garden products. Thousands of acres are under irrigation from flowing artesian wells, principally located in southwest Texas. Figs and oranges thrive in the south. Texas ranked second in the production of honey in 1920. The crop weighed 5,041,236 pounds, valued at $1,008,246.

UTAH

State Capital, SALT LAKE CITY

Population 531,000 (U. S. Census Bureau Estimate, 1928)

Utah is bounded north by Idaho and Wyoming, east by Wyoming and Colorado, south by Arizona and west by Nevada; length, north to south, about 350 miles; width, about 200 miles; land area, 82,184 square miles. The surface is generally mountainous, averaging 6,100 feet above sea level and interspersed with arid plains, valleys and basins. The annual rainfall varies from five inches on the plain to twenty inches on the high mountains, the average for the state from twelve to fifteen inches. The great Salt Lake, in the northwest, is eighty miles long with an average width of about twenty-five miles. Its water contains nearly twenty per cent of salt. The timber lands, with a total stand estimated at nine billion feet, are almost entirely situated in the National Forests.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 441,901; of this number 56,445 are foreign-born, 19,660 from the British Isles, Scandinavians 15,152. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Indians 2,711. Urban residents 215,584, rural 233,812. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 1.9; of the foreign-born white 6.3.

Agriculture. Utah ranked forty-first in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $78,000,000; value of crops $42,000,000; value of live stock products, $36,000,000. Grazing and mountain lands comprise about two-thirds of the state. The area at present under cultivation is about four per cent. It is estimated that "dry" farming can be successfully practiced on several million acres of land which has a limited rainfall, but by reason of its location cannot be irrigated. Much of the finest wheat is grown on such land, and the quality is superior to that grown in more humid climates. Twenty per cent of the soil can be made productive by irrigation, which almost invariably brings good results, as the soil contains all the elements of fertility. Grain and potatoes especially show a decided increase in yield on irrigated land. The state has 6,343 miles of main ditches, 5,334 miles of lateral ditches and 1,600,505 acre-feet of irrigation reservoirs. The United States government has reclamation projects under way and in prospect, to cost several million dollars and 1,371,651 acres are now provided with water. Laws have been passed by which the rights of settlers on these lands will be thoroughly safeguarded. The mining industry, formerly Utah's chief source of wealth and still increasing in value, year by year, has been compelled to yield first place by reason of the wonderful development of the state's agricultural resources. The 1920 census found 25,667 farms in the state, averaging 196.8 acres in size and 66.8 acres improved. 10.9 per cent were worked by tenants. There were 21,276 native white farmers, 3,972 foreign-born white, a third of them from Great Britain and another third from Scandinavian countries. 209 Indians, 133 Japanese, 61 negroes and 11 Chinese made up the rest. About 10,000 acres are devoted to orchard and nursery interests.

Chief Crops—1928	Production	State's Rank	Value	Acreage	Average Acre Yield
Barley	1,666,000 bu.		$1,216,000	34,000	49.0 bu.

Total estimated value of 22 leading crops		38	$29,561,000

From U. S. Agr. Dept. Report, Dec., 1928.

On January 1, 1929, there were on the farms: 2,866,000 sheep, value $33,033,000. The 1928 wool clip weighed 22,072,000 pounds. State ranked fifth in sheep and wool.

Industries. In 1925, there were 517 manufacturing establishments doing an annual business of $5,000 or over, a decrease of 62 since 1923, employing 15,077 wage earners. Annual value of products, $177,224,538. Some leading industries according to value of products are: smelting and refining; beet-sugar; canning and preserving of fruit and vegetables; grain and flour mill products; slaughtering and meat packing; butter and cheese; confectionery.

Minerals. The 1927 mineral production had a value of $90,368,000. State ranked fourteenth in mineral production. Principal products were copper, lead, coal, silver.

VERMONT

Population 352,428 (U. S. Census Bureau, 1920)
State Capital, MONTPELIER

Vermont is the most northwesterly of the New England states, bounded north by Quebec, east by New Hampshire, south by Massachusetts and west by New York. It is 143 miles long by from 40 to 85 miles wide, with a land area of 9,124 square miles. The Green Mountains traverse it from north to south, mainly in two ranges, generally covered with dense forests, but affording excellent pasturage. Western Vermont and a large tract of the eastern part comprise beautiful pastoral regions, but the central part is rugged and mountainous. The best soil is found on the western slope of the mountains near the border of Lake Champlain and in the valley lands of the Connecticut River. The state is a favorite vacation and summer residence region for many thousands of people from the large cities.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 351,817; of this number 44,526 are foreign-born, 7,484 from the British Isles, French Canadians 14,181, Canadians 10,704, Italians 4,067. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Urban residents 109,976, rural 242,452. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 3.0; of the foreign-born white 11.3.

Agriculture. Vermont ranked thirty-eighth in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $97,000,000; value of crops, $44,000,000; value of live stock products, $53,000,000. The state occupies a prominent position in agriculture. When its area, population, amount of forest land and long severe winters are considered, there is perhaps no other state that yields so large a return. The yield of maple products is first among the states, the 1928 production being 1,038,000 gallons of sirup and 1,133,000 pounds of sugar. The number of maples tapped was 5,722,000, about the yearly average. Some wrapper tobacco is grown in southern Vermont, in the valley of the Connecticut. The state's farms, in 1920, numbered 29,075. 25,308 were run by native Americans, 3,767 by immigrants, of whom 2,663 came from Canada. The farms averaged in size 145.7 acres, 58.2 acres improved. 86.4 per cent were operated by owners, 2 per cent by managers and 11.6 by tenants. In all the New England states, the percentage of tenant farmers is lower than in the other divisions of the country and is decreasing, while in many other sections it is increasing. The four states showing the lowest percentage of tenant farmers are all in New England. The percentage of tenantry in New England as a whole is 7.4. In the country as a whole it is 38.1. In eight of the southern states it is over 50 per cent and in three of them over 60 per cent.

Chief Fruits:
Apples	560,000 bu.		840,000
Grapes	36 tons
Pears	6,000 bu.		13,000
Total estimated value of 22 leading crops		43	27,027,000

From U. S. Agr. Dept. Report, Dec., 1928.

The state's live stock exceeds in value that of any other state in New England, although it is the smallest state in population. Vermont continues to be the greatest breeding state of fine horses (Morgans and Hambletonians) and of Spanish merino sheep. Every year numbers of these animals are shipped to all parts of this country, to South America and to Australia. Vermont has the largest value of dairy products per capita of the states, the value in 1925 being $23,788,584.

Industries. In 1925, there were 951 manufacturing establishments doing an annual business of $5,000 or over, a decrease of 70 since 1923, employing 27,563 wage earners. Annual value of products, $138,269,861. Some leading industries according to value of products are: marble, slate and stone work; woolen goods; paper and wood pulp; flour and grain mill products; butter, cheese, condensed and evaporated milk; lumber and timber products; knit goods; furniture and many others.

Minerals. The 1927 mineral production had a value of $14,703,000. State ranked thirty-sixth in value of minerals. Principal products were stone, slate, lime, talc.

VIRGINIA

Population 2,575,000 (U. S. Census Bureau Estimate, 1928)

State Capital, RICHMOND

Virginia is bounded north by West Virginia and Maryland, east by Maryland and the Atlantic Ocean, south by North Carolina and Tennessee and west by Kentucky and West Virginia. Its greatest length from east to west is about 440 miles, its greatest breadth, 192 miles; land area, 40,262 square miles. The surface is divided into six great natural divisions, the Tidewater, comprising the south and southeast; the Middle, an undulating plain, extending westward to the Coast Range; the Piedmont, from the Coast Range to the Blue Ridge Mountains and from the Potomac River to North Carolina; the Blue Ridge, stretching across the state in a southwesterly direction; the Valley, a part of the great Appalachian valley, reaching from Canada to Alabama, a broad belt of rolling country between the Blue Ridge and the Kittatinny or North Mountain; and the Appalachian, a mountainous region traversed by the Alleghanies. The soil in the Tidewater region is a light sandy loam, yielding large crops of vegetables and small fruits. The Valley region has a rich, fertile soil, well adapted for cereals, of which corn, wheat, oats and rye are the principal. Much of the mountain region is uncultivated and chiefly forest land; but the parallel valleys are very fertile. The Piedmont, Blue Ridge, Valley and Appalachian regions are noted for their grasses. The forests of Virginia are rich in a large variety of trees, especially the valuable hardwoods and the export of lumber is large.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 1,617,909; of this number 30,785 are foreign-born, 6,998 from the British Isles, Russians 5,421, Germans 2,802, Italians 2,435. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Negroes 690,017. Urban residents 673,984, rural 1,635,203. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 11.2; of the foreign-born white 7.1; of the negroes 23.5.

Agriculture. Virginia ranked twenty-second in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $342,000,000; value of crops, $213,000,000; value of live stock products, $129,000,000. The growth in the total products of the farms during the last ten or twenty years has been very noticeable. Some cotton is grown in the Tidewater section. Fruit grows all over the state, especially apples of fine quality. A large part of the Tidewater region is devoted to the growing of early vegetables for northern markets, especially near Norfolk. The farms, in 1920, numbered 186,242, averaging 99.7 acres, 50.8 acres improved. There were 138,456 white and 47,786 colored farmers, the latter including 96 Indians. 73.2 per cent were operated by their owners, 1.1 per cent by managers and 25.6 per cent by tenants. Florida is the only southern state having so large a percentage of owner farmers.

From U. S. Agr. Dept. Report, Dec., 1928.

Fisheries. The fish caught during 1925 weighed 276,227,784 pounds, value $8,084,641. This was a decrease over 1920 of 194,991,305 pounds and an increase of $542,917. The most valuable catches were oysters, menhaden, shad, croakers, sea trout, crabs, clams. State ranked fourth in value of catch.

Industries. In 1925, there were 2,552 manufacturing establishments doing an annual business of $5,000 or over, a decrease of 221 since 1923, employing 112,135 wage earners. Annual value of products, $385,510,865. Some leading industries according to value of products are chewing and smoking tobacco; snuff; cigars and cigarettes; cotton goods; lumber and timber products; paper and wood pulp; flour and grain mill products; fertilizers; ship and boat building; slaughtering and meat packing; leather, tanned, curried and finished; chemicals, and many others.

Minerals. The 1927 mineral production had a value of $41,320,000. State ranked twenty-fourth in value of minerals. Principal products were coal, cement, clay products, stone.

General. Transportation facilities are good, both by water and rail. Water-power is abundant; even in the Tidewater section the small streams have sufficient fall to operate the local grist mills and other industries.

VIRGIN ISLANDS

Population 26,051 (U. S. Census Bureau, 1917). (2,000 white.)
Capital, SAINT THOMAS

The Virgin Islands are situated about 55 miles east of Port Rico. They consist of the islands of St. Thomas, area about 33 square miles, population 11,191; St. Johns, area 21 square miles, population 959; Saint Croix, area 80 square miles, population 14,901, together with some smaller islands, insignificant in size. St. Thomas contains the capital. Although the islands are in the tropic zone, the constant northeast trade winds render the temperature remarkably even and the climate healthful. The farm land is about five-sixths of the area, divided into 430 farms. The live stock in 1917 comprised 12,377 cattle, 2,129 horses, 1,600 mules, 974 asses, 2,329 hogs, 2,259 goats and 1,096 sheep. Sugar cane—with a crop of 12,000 tons in 1919, rum, tobacco, cotton, hides and hardwoods are the chief products. The islands are the original home and the headquarters of the manufacture of bay rum, which is the principal industry. It is exported to all parts of the world. There is also a large trade in panama hats. The imports of the islands are principally foodstuffs, coal and manufactured goods. The fisheries produce about $45,000 annually. There is a magnificent harbor at Saint Thomas (late Charlotte Amalie), which is a favorite coaling station. Goods were imported from the United States, to the value of $1,616,468 in 1925, exports $595,375. The islands were taken over by the United States on March 31st, 1917, being purchased from Denmark, which country made the first permanent settlement in 1672. Although a Danish possession for over 200 years, the language of the people is English.

WASHINGTON

Population 1,587,000 (U. S. Census Bureau Estimate, 1928)
State Capital, OLYMPIA

Washington is bounded north by British Columbia, west by the Pacific Ocean, east by Idaho and south by Oregon. Its average length, east to west, is 330 miles; width, 220 miles; land area, 66,836 square miles. It is divided by the Cascade Mountains into two distinct parts. Puget Sound is a vast harbor, having an extent of 1,594 miles of shore line, and Seattle, its principal seaport, is fast becoming the metropolis of the northwest Pacific coast. Fish of all kinds abound and the taking and canning of salmon employs about ten thousand people in the season. The climate of Washington is ideal; the mean average temperature for the year being 53°, without extremes of heat or cold.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 1,319,777; of this number 250,055 are foreign-born, 39,674 from the British Isles, Scandinavians 73,457, Canadians 40,598, Germans 22,315. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Indians 9,061, negroes 6,883. Urban residents 748,735, rural 607,886. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 1.7; of the foreign-born white 4.7; of the negroes 4.0.

Agriculture. Washington ranked twenty-sixth in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $263,000,000; value of crops, $182,000,000; value of live stock products, $81,000,000. There are many fertile valleys well settled and very productive in vegetables of fine quality, fruit of all kinds and hops. Fruit growing has been especially successful and some of the largest and finest fruits in the eastern market are those shipped from Washington. In 1920 the farms numbered 66,288, averaging 199.8 acres, with 107.6 acres improved. 79.5 per cent of the farms were worked by their owners, 1.8 per cent by managers and 18.7 per cent by tenants. White farmers numbered 65,022, of whom 70 per cent were native and 30 per cent foreign-born. There were 79 negro farmers, 460 Indian, 699 Japanese and 28 Chinese. There are some waterless regions in the central and eastern portions of the state, between the eastern slopes of the Cascade range and the western slope of the Rocky Mountains. Some parts of this area have been irrigated by private enterprise and other reclamation projects are under way, in addition to the Yakima and Okanogan projects, which are being constructed by the government.

From U. S. Agr. Dept. Report, Dec., 1928.

Forests. The wooded area in 1920 was estimated to cover about 17,550,000 acres. The principal species cut was Douglas fir. The state led in the production of Douglas fir, hemlock, cedar and spruce in 1926. In 1927 there were 400 active mills cutting over 50,000 feet, lumber sawed 7,325,862 (m.ft.b.m.). State ranked first in lumber sawed and in production of lath and shingles.

Fisheries. The fish caught during 1927 weighed 125,655,217 pounds, value $9,145,354. This is an increase over 1926 of 36,018,000 pounds and $1,203,000. The most valuable catches were salmon, halibut, sablefish, trout, clams, crabs. State ranked third in value of catch.

Industries. In 1925, there were 3,216 manufacturing establishments doing an annual business of $5,000 or over, an increase of 208 over 1923, employing 105,893 wage earners. Annual value of products, $659,339,836. Some leading industries according to value of products are: lumber, timber and planing mill; grain and flour mill products; slaughtering and meat packing; butter, cheese, condensed and evaporated milk; foundry and machine shop products; paper and wood pulp; canning and preserving of fruits and vegetables; crabs, shrimp, oysters, clams and fish; tin cans and tinware and many others.

WEST VIRGINIA

Population 1,724,000 (U. S. Census Bureau Estimate, 1928)
State Capital, CHARLESTON

West Virginia is bounded north and east by Pennsylvania and Maryland, east and south by Virginia and west by Kentucky and Ohio. Its greatest length from north to south is about 240 miles; greatest breadth, 160 miles; land area, 24,022 square miles. Many navigable tributaries of the Ohio River flow through the state. The surface of its rivers is estimated at 135 square miles. The climate is remarkably healthful, without extremes of temperature or of dryness or moisture, making energetic outdoor labor possible at all seasons. The first killing frost generally comes about the middle of October in the Ohio Valley region and about the first of October in the mountain region. A large part of the surface is mountainous and hilly; about two-thirds is covered with forest. The soil of the ridges is fertile to the tops and the summits of many mountains are flat, natural meadows.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 1,377,235; of this number 61,906 are foreign-born, 6,596 from the British Isles, Italians 14,417, Poles 5,799, Hungarians 6,260. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Negroes 86,345. Urban residents 369,007, rural 1,094,694. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 6.4; of the foreign-born white 24.0; of the negroes 15.3.

Agriculture. West Virginia ranked thirty-third in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $156,000,000; value of crops, $84,000,000; value of live stock products, $72,010,000. There were, in 1920, 87,289 farms in the state. Their average size was 109.6 acres with 63.2 acres improved. 86,785 of the farmers were white, 504 negro. 82.6 per cent of the farms were worked by their owners, 1.2 per cent by managers and only 16.2 per cent by tenants. There were 752 foreign-born farmers. The valley of the Great Kanawha is the finest grazing region of the state. No finer blue grass farms exist than those of the central, northern and Greenbrier sections. The soil is particularly well adapted for apples, peaches and other fruits.

Total estimated value of 22 leading crops		33	$56,545,000

From U. S. Agr. Dept. Report, Dec., 1928.

Minerals. The 1927 mineral production had a value of $366,643,000. State ranked fifth in value of minerals. Principal products were coal, natural gas, petroleum, clay products.

Industries. In 1925, there were 1,395 manufacturing establishments doing an annual business of $5,000 or over, a decrease of 92 since 1923, employing 80,700 wage earners. Annual value of products, $470,821,582. Some leading industries according to value of products are: iron and steel; glass; slaughtering and meat packing; petroleum refining; leather, tanned, curried and finished; smelting and refining zinc; pottery; coke; foundry and machine shop products, and many others.

General. Wheeling is the largest and most important city; it is the manufacturing center and important industries, except salt manufacturing, are located here. Transportation facilities are being extended in all directions, 1,200 miles of new railroad having been laid within ten years. Over 1,200 new school houses were built in the ten years after 1901 and the value of property devoted to educational purposes increased in the same time from $4,515,000 to $12,931,694. Over $5,000,000 was appropriated for educational purposes in 1911. The population increased 27.4 per cent from 1900 to 1910, the total assessed property increased from $278,829,659 in 1904 to $1,114,000,000 in 1911 and bank deposits, which in 1895 were $16,447,000, increased to over $100,000,000 in 1911.

WISCONSIN

State Capital, MADISON

Wisconsin is bounded north by Lake Superior, northeast by Michigan, east by Lake Michigan, south by Illinois and west by Iowa and Minnesota. Its greatest length from north to south is 300 miles; greatest breadth, 260 miles; land area, 55,256 square miles. The surface is generally an elevated plain, with high bluffs along the rivers and lakes and elsewhere gently undulating, diversified with prairie, woodlands and numerous lakes. The northern part is heavily timbered and has a somewhat severe climate.

Population, 1920 census. White people, 2,616,938; of this number 460,128 are foreign-born, 23,418 from the British Isles, Germans 151,250, Scandinavians 83,749, Poles 50,558, Russians 21,447. Remainder from other European and Asiatic countries. Indians 9,611, negroes 5,201. Urban residents 1,244,568, rural 1,387,499. Percentage of illiterates: in the state 2.4; of the foreign-born white 8.4; of the negroes 4.1.

Agriculture. Wisconsin ranked seventh in 1927 in the total value of agricultural products, value $723,000,000; value of crops, $347,000,000; value of live stock products, $376,000,000. In 1920, the farms numbered 189,295, averaging 117 acres, 65.8 acres per farm being improved land. Tenant farmers work only 14.4 per cent of the farms, owners 84.3 per cent, managers 1.3 per cent. Nearly 30 per cent of the farmers were foreign-born, Germans in the lead, Scandinavians next. 47 negroes, 615 Indians and 1 Japanese complete the list. The growing of seed leaf tobacco or wrappers has become an important and profitable industry and the product commands good prices. Cabbages are shipped out by carloads. Narly half of the country's crop of canning peas is grown in this state. Wisconsin ranked fifth in 1920 in the production of honey, producing 2,676,683 pounds, value $722,707. Wisconsin surpasses all of the states in the production of dairy products. In July, 1926, there were 2,779 cheese factories, an increase of 272 over 1924; 599 butter factories, a decrease of 12 over 1924; 89 condenseries, an increase of 22 over 1924; 1,097 milk receiving stations, an increase of 282 over 1924. In 1925 Wisconsin produced 168,617,861 pounds of butter, value $73,758,913.73, an increase of 19,628,277 pounds and $7,370,682 over 1923. The cheese produced weighed 363,677,940 pounds and had a value of $79,595,515.23, an increase of 30,251,287 pounds and $4,512,013.57 over 1923. The total value of dairy products of the farms according to the 1925 census was $142,508,931. American cheese production has gained 26 per cent in the past six years; brick cheese production has declined since 1919 and Swiss cheese remains at the same level. The condensed milk industry has grown to four times its size of ten years ago. Walworth, Racine and Kenosha counties ship market milk to Chicago, and Wankesha, Racine and Washington counties ship to Milwaukee. The largest number of creameries, cheese factories and condensaries are found in the central, southern and southeastern parts of the state. Dodge, Lafayette, Dane and especially Green counties manufacture the bulk of the foreign cheeses, namely Brick, Limberger and Swiss. The total production for 1925 was 34,748,295 pounds of Brick cheese; 5,760,289 pounds of Limberger and 20,667,237 pounds of Swiss cheese.
